THE LUCKY HORSE SHOE.

A farmer travelling with his load
Picked up a horseshoe in the road,
And hailed it fast to his barn door,
That luck might down upon him pour,
That every blessing known in life
Might crown his homestead and his wife,
And never any kind of harm
Descend upon his growing farm.

But ere ill-fortune soon began
To visit the as-sounded man.
His hens decline to lay their eggs;
His bees seen tumbled from their pegs,
And rats devoured the fallen legs;
His corn, that never failed before,
Mildewed and rotted on the floor;
His grass refused to end in hay;
His cattle died, or went astray;
In short, all moved the crooked way.

Next Spring a great drought baked the sod,
And roasted every pea in pod;
The beans declared they could not grow
So long as nature acted so;
Redundant insects reared their brood
To starve for lack of juicy food;
The stavs from barrel sides went off
As if they had the whooping cough,
And nothing of the useful kind
To hold together felt inclined;
In short, it was no use to try
While all the land was in a fry.

One morn, demoralized with grief,
The farmer clamored for relief;
And prayed right hard to understand
What witchcraft now pessed his land;
Why house and farm to misery grew
Since he nailed up that "lucky" shoe.

While thus dismayed o'er matters wrong
An old man chanced to trange along,
To whom he told, with wirnwood tears
How his affairs were in arrears,
And what a desperate state of things
A picked up horseshoe sometimes brings.

The stranger asked to see the shoe;
The farmer brought it into view;
But when the old man raised his head,
He laughed outright, and quickly said,
"No wonder skies upon you frown—
You've nailed the horseshoe upside down!
Just turn it round, and soon you'll see
How you and fortune will agree."

The farmer turned the horseshoe round
And showers began to swell the ground;
The sunshine laughed among his grain,
And heaps on heaps piled up the wain
The loft his hay could barely hold,
His cattle did as they were told;
His fruit trees needed sturdy props
To hold the gathering apple crops;
His turnip and potato fields
Astonished all men by their yields;
Folks never saw such ears of corn
As in his sunlings hills were born;
His barn was full of bursting bins—
His wife presented him with twins;
His neighbors marveled more and more
To see the increase in his store.
And now the merry farmer sings
"There are two ways of doing things;
And when for good luck you would pray,
Nail up your horseshoe the right way."

A LADY, AFTER ALL

A LESSON IN LOVE.

Lennox Ray sprang from the train and hastened up the green lane to the wide, old-fashioned farm house, carrying his valise in his hand.

'I wonder if Nanny got my note and is looking for me? Hallo!'

This last exclamation was drawn from Ray's lips by a cherry, which, coming from above somewhere, came into sudden contact with his nose.

He looked up, and there, perched like a great bird, upon the limb of a huge old cherry tree, and looking down at him with dancing eyes and brilliant cheeks, was a young girl.

'How do, Lennox? Come up and have some cherries!' was her mischevious greeting.

'Nannie! is it possible!' exclaimed Lennox severely.

And while Ray looked on in stern disapproval, the young witch swung herself down.

'Now don't look so glum, Lennox, dear she said, slipping her little hand into his with a coaxing motion. 'I know it's tomboyish to climb cherry trees, but, then, it's such fun!'

'Nannie, you should have been a boy!' said Lennox.

'I wish I had! No I don't either; for then you wouldn't have fallen in love with me. What made you dear?' with a fond glance, and a caressing movement.

'Because you are so sweet, darling,' answered Ray melting in spite of himself.

'But I do wish Nannie, you would leave off those heydenish ways and be more dignified.

'Like Miss Isham? asked Nannie.

'Miss Isham is a very superior woman and it would not hurt you to copy her in some respects.'

The tears sprang into Nannie's eyes at his tone.

They went in the parlor and Ray took a seat in a great arm chair.

Nannie, giving her curls a toss backward, went and sat down.

'I wish you would put up those flyaway curls and dress your hair as other young ladies do,' said Ray. 'And see here, Nannie, I want to have a talk with you. You know I love you; but in truth, my dear, my wife must have something of the elegance of refined society. Your manners need polishing, my dear. I came down to tell you that my sister Laura is making up a party to visit the noted watering places, and she wishes you to be one of the number.'

'Are you going?' asked Nannie.

'No, my business will not allow it; but I shall see you several times. Will you go?'

'I don't want to go. I'd rather stay here in the country and climb cherry trees every day.'

'Nannie, I must insist more upon self control,' said he, coldly.

'But do not send me away,' she pleaded.

'It's for your good, Nannie and you must be content to go. Will you?'

The supper bell rang at that instant, and Nannie hastily answered:

'Yes; let me go, Lennox,' and ran out of the room and up stairs to her own chamber.

'Yes, I'll go. And I'll teach you one lesson, Mr. Lennox Ray; see if I don't,' she murmured.

It was nearly the middle of September before Mr. Ray, heated, dusty and weary entered the hotel where his sister's party were stopping.

'Lennox! you here?' said she.

'Yes. Where's Nannie?'

She was on the piazza, talking with a French count, a moment ago. Ah! there she is by the door.'

'Ah!' said Lennox, dropping Laura's hand and making his way toward the door.

But it was difficult, even when he drew near, to see in the stylish, stately lady, whose hair was put up over a monstrous chignon, and whose lustrous robes, swept the floor for a yard, his own little Nannie of three months ago.

Lennox strode up with scarce a glance at the bewildered dandy to whom she was chatting, and held out his hand with an eager exclamation.

'Nannie!'

She made a sweeping courtesy, and languidly extended the tips of her fingers but not a muscle moved beyond what accorded with well bred indifference.

'Ah, good evening, Mr. Ray.'

'Oh, Nannie! are you glad to see me?' said Lennox, feeling that his heart was chilled within him.

'Oh, to be sure, Mr. Ray, quite glad. Allow me to present my friend the Count de Beaurepaire. Mr. Ray, Monsieur.'

Lennox hardly deigned a bow to the Frenchman, and offered his arm to Nannie.

'Thanks—but the music is beginning, and I promised to have a dance with Mr Blair.'

'But afterward,' said Lennox, the chill growing colder.

'But I am engaged to Mr. Thornton.'

'When then?' demanded Lennox with a jealous pang.

'Really, my card is so full, I hardly know. I will, however, try and spare you a waltz somewhere.'

'Good heavens! Nannie; what affectation is this!'

She favored him with a well bred stare.

'Pardon, I do not understand you.'

And taking the arm of her escort; she walked away with the air of an empress.

Lennox sought his sister.

'Laura, how have you changed Nannie so?' he demanded.

'Yes, she is changed. Isn't she perfect?'

'Perfect? Rather too perfect to suit me,' growled Lennox. 'To-morrow I shall see more of Nannie,' he thought.

But to-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow, it was always the same, and 'that elegant Miss Irving,' as they styled her, was always in demand, and poor Lennox from the distance at which she kept him looked on almost heart-broken, varying between wrath, jealousy, pride and despair.

'Nannie,' said he, one morning, when he found her for a moment alone, 'how long is this to last?'

'I believe you wished me to come here to improve my manners, Mr. Ray, to acquire the elegance of society,' she said coldly.

'But, Nannie—'

'Well, if you are not pleased with the result of your advice, I am not to blame. You must excuse me now, Mr. Ray; I am going to ride with the Count de Beaurepaire.'

And with a graceful gesture of adieu she left him sick at heart.

That afternoon Lennox walked unannounced into Laura's room.

'I thought I'd drop in and say 'Good-bye' before you went down stairs,' said he. 'I leave to-night.'

'Indeed! where are you going?' asked Laura.

'Oh, I don't know,' was the savage reply.

'You can take a note to George for me?'

'Yes, if you get it ready,' said he.

'Very Well. I will write it now.

Laura left the room, and Lennox stood moodily at the window.

Presently Nannie came up and stood near him.

'Are you really going away?' she asked.

'Yes, I am,' was the short answer.

'And won't you tell us where?'

'I don't know myself—neither know nor care!' he growled.

She slipped her hand in his arm, with the old caressing movement he remembered so well, and spoke gently, using his name for the first time since he came.

'But, Lennox, dear, if you go away off somewhere, what shall I do?'

He turned suddenly and caught her to his heart.

'Oh, Nannie, Nannie!' he cried, passionately, 'if you would only come back to me, and love me—If I could recover my lost treasure, I would not go anywhere. Oh, my lost love, is it too late?'

She laid her face down against his shoulder, and asked:

'Lennox, dear, tell me which you love best, the Nannie you used to know, or the fashionable young lady you found here?'

'Oh, Nannie, darling!' he cried clasping her closer, 'I wouldn't give one toss of your old brown curls for all the fashionable young ladies in the world.'

'Then you will have to take your old Nannie back again, Lennox, dear.'

And Lennox, passionately clasping her to him, begged to be forgiven, and vowed he would not exchange his precious little wild rose for all the hot house flowers in Christendom.

"I Don't Want That Stuff,"

Is what a lady of Boston said to her husband when he brought home some medicine to cure her of sick headache and neuralgia which had made her miserable for fourteen years. At the first attack thereafter, it was administered to her with such good results that she continued its use until cured, and was so enthusiastic in its praise, that she induced twenty-seven of the best families in her circle to adopt it as their regular family medicine. That "stuff" is Hop Bitters.—Standard

Red Hot Ice.

Professor Carnelly informs the London Chemical News that by sufficiently compressing ice on its sides that it can be made as hot as boiling water without melting a particle. The professor says: 'Having come to this conclusion, it would be possible to have solid ice at temperatures far above the ordinary melting points. After several unsuccessful attempts, I was so fortunate as to obtain the most perfect success, and having obtained solid ice at temperatures so high that it was impossible to touch it without burning one's self.

'This result has been obtained many times and with the greatest ease, and not only so, but on one occasion a small quantity of water was frozen in a glass vessel which could not be touched by hand without burning it. I have had ice for a considerable length of time at temperatures far above the ordinary boiling point, and even then it sublimed away without any previous melting.'

If all this be true the time will soon come when we will be able to kindel fire with snow balls.

Rumors About Liberia.

STATEMENTS AS TO ALLEGED DESTITUTION AND DISAFFECTION.

The scheme of emigrating to Liberia is becoming more and more popular among the Southern negroes. So great, indeed, is the exodus to be that a new shipping house has lately been established for the purpose of sending out negroes to Liberia. Recently there was a rumor that hundreds of colored persons who had gone out to Liberia had returned to this country in disgust, that remunerative wages were not to be had, and that the African fever was proving as fatal to the colored race as it always is to the whites. As a result there has been great consternation among the colored communities throughout the country, and the number of inquiries addressed to the officers of the Colonization Society and to the Rev. Highland Garnet have been innumerable.

The latter said: 'These rumors have no foundation whatever. They are based on absolutely nothing at all. I have not heard of any one who has come back from Liberia dissatisfied except some few ne'er do wells.'

Last May three persons well known in Liberia arrived in this city. These were the ex-President of the republic, James Payne, Bishop Pinny, and Mr. H. W. Johnson. The latter, a rich planter on the St. Paul's River, had come to procure improved farming implements and machinery. He lodged in the house of his friend, Mr. Peter Downing, proprietor of the restaurant in the Custom House. A short time since he died. Parkulan, a native boy whom Mr. Johnson brought out with him, is still with the friend of his employer. Parkulan is the son of the King of the Pesses, a native tribe, which, like the Golahs, the Kroos, the Veys, and the Deys is under the jurisdiction of the republic. His benefactor, Mr. Downing, has passed several years in Liberia, and returns on account of the approaching death of his father. By means of a series of intelligent interrogatories addressed to him by Mr. Downing, Parkulan described the condition of the American blacks as now existing. This is the substance:

'When the colored man and his family arrive at Monrovia they are at once taken charge of by the Colinization Society. Under the care of the latter they remain for six months. By this time they have got safely through the 'acclimating' fever, which seems to be caused not by the heat, but miasmata, of the origin and character of which little is known. The first symptoms of the sickness are headache, pains in the back, loss of appetite, and more or less gastric derangement, rapidly developing into bilious intermittent fever. If this yields to mild medical treatment, the patient is prepared to endure ordinary exposure to the climate. Sometimes the disease assumes the tertiary form of intermittent fever accompanied by bilious vomiting, a dull expression of the eye, and in the febrile paroxysms intense headache and delirium.

'At the expiration of six months the colonists are given land to cultivate. Here may be grown maize and rice, and on the highlands of the interior wheat, barley and oats. Cotton flourishes and sugar cane and coffee are easily produced. The esculent and farinaceous roots chiefly cultivated are the potato, the cassava, the yam, the tenia—resembling the potato—and the arrowroot. Nearly all the vegetables grown in America may be profitably cultivated. Although American, English and French money is to be had, the inhabitants, as a rule, conduct their business on the principle of exchange. Thus a man may exchange a quarter of oats for its equivalent in coffee, beans, &c. There are no beggars. When once a colored man gets a good foothold in Liberia he is pretty sure to get along all right. It is a rare thing to find persons, after being acclimated, show a desire to return to America.'

The Rev. T. J. Bowen, of South Carolina, a missionary sent to western Africa by the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, thus describes the condition of the people in Liberia: 'The houses in Monrovia are generally two stories high. The furniture is similar to that used in America. Most of the people seem to live as comfortably as those at home. I have heard them accused of being too fond of dress and show, but if they were more so than other people who live in towns I was not able to perceive it.'

The sailing of the newly fitted bark Tack Sing for Monrovia, Liberia, is looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the members of Shiloh Presbyterian Church. On the vessel will sail for Liberia Mrs. Mary Highland Garnet Barboza, the daughter of the Rev. Henry Highland Garnet, pastor of the church, her husband and family of four children. Mrs. Barboza is not more than 35 years of age. She is well educated. 'I am anxious to be on the way,' she said, 'to my new home and the field of my future labors. I call it my new home, because I go with the expectation of living and dying there. I have long contemplated going to Liberia, and believe that it can be of more benefit to my race there than here. From authentic accounts, the soil of Liberia is wonderfully fertile and its climate is healthful, but its myriads of people are floundering in woful ignorance. To build up schools, disseminate knowledge, and shed the light of education over the dark waste, I believe to be the duty of every colored man of this country who is competent for the task.'

The Liberian Government, through the influence of President Blyden of the Liberian College, has granted a tract of 100 acres of land upon which to build an educational institution to be presided over by Mrs. Barboza. None but girls will be admitted to the institution, and these will be chosen, as far as possible, from the native element. Mrs. Barboza's husband will conduct the farms and teach the natives husbandry. A reception will be given the Barboza family in Shiloh Church on the morning of the day on which the vessel sails, and members of the church and friends will accompany them to the vessel, which lies at the foot of Pine street, East River.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday, Dec. 3, 1880.

Booth is making a hit in London in his rendition of Richelieu.

It took seven weeks to remove the obelisk from its landing place to Central Park, New York.

The Maine Republicans seem to have given up their contemplated contest, on technicalities, of Governor Plaisted's election. At least they are very reticent about it.

What a fine sight it must have been to see "the first Caristain President" walk off arm in arm from the Washington depot with Bob Ingersoll.

Gen. Grant's name has been mentioned for the seat of Senator Wallace in the United States Senate. Is there anything else he can be named for?

It has been proposed to create offices for ex Presidents and Vice Presidents. Why not appoint them all saugage inspectors? Sausage is something that needs constant watching.

It is alleged that the California Garfield elector is an Ohio man, which of course accounts for his being elected when the balance of the ticket was defeated. Ohio beats the Union for strong political runners.

The New York Sun says that if Grant must have something let him be made Chief of the Bureau of Detectives at Washington, because "he knows every dishonest post trader and illicit distiller in the United States." This is not the worst of the many projects put forth in Grant's behalf. It opens to him a field of usefulness far greater than a sinecure in the senate or a hat full of money dumped in his lap.

Considerable speculation has been indulged in about the organization of the House of Representatives. But while the radicals have the majority, and are boasting of their great victory let us consider a moment in what this victory consists. The present House of Representatives under Democratic management has been prolific, and a great part of them are again returned. Samuel J. Randall, the Speaker has shown by his pursistence in defeating measures of the radicals to have the good of the government at heart, in opposition to the money loving power against whom he contended. He has probably saved to the Treasury more millions than any one man in history. When chairman of appropriations he began his economical method and saved to the government thirty millions in a single fiscal year, and under his speakership the lobby (or anteroom, where measures were perhaps secretly discussed and pledges made) has been almost entirely extinguished. No subsidies, no land grants, no extravagant doubtful claims of any description have been granted. In contrast is the Republican House when Mr. Blaine was speaker and Mr. Garfield, as chairman of appropriations, at which time railroad grants were given in profusion, and pavement contracts awarded, draining millions from our treasury, and members hoarding their land grant bonds. Every day's report was full of accounts of congressional corruption, until by protests of the people they were swept out. Now that the Republicans are in the majority will these old rings appear? Will the system of grants and bounties again return? The organization and formation of the cabinet will speak to the people. Should the cabinet be made up of money loving men, who care naught for the welfare of the people, we must trust to our democratic leaders who have shown by their just closing term to be far superior in parliamentary experience and ability.

In the Senate they are so evenly divided that a check may be put upon any enormous measure tried by these office seeking and self aggrandizing money-powered men, and hence pave the way for the ultimate triumph of the Democratic party.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C. November 30, 1880.

General Garfield left this city for his home yesterday. The generally accepted idea now is that his visit here was for the purpose of consulting Mr. Hayes, and that he came at the request of that gentleman. It is believed that the message Mr. Hayes will send to Congress next Monday will be more or less colored with the views of General Garfield on several points—on reform in the civil service, on which subject of course, the unsupported recommendations of Mr. Hayes, who has violated every promise he ever made in this connection would have no weight whatever, on the course to be adopted towards the South, and perhaps on other points. In short, it is thought Mr. Hayes wishes to smooth the way for his successor. The extraordinary care taken to keep this annual message from the public shows that unusual importance is attached to it, and in the present peaceful and prosperous condition of the country there would seem to be no special reason for this if the message contains nothing but a cheerful resume of the governments operations for the past year and such milk and water suggestions as would be evolved from the brains of the present occupant of the White House. This example of consultation between the retiring and the incoming ruler is a good one, and will doubtless be beneficial in many cases. In this particular instance of course, Garfield will not learn anything, but it is something to have his ideas before the people and before Congress in a sort of experimental way for three months, so that, before he comes to speak in his own name he can tell better how popular they are.

Ex-Senator Sprague has been in town for a few days, and all sorts of designs, from commencing a divorce suit to advising General Garfield as to the New England member of his Cabinet, are named as objects of his visit. Speaking of Cabinet officers, the friends of Senator Blaine say that he will name Representative Frye for Secretary of Navy, and that Frye will drop his Senatorial and Sheakership chances and accept the place. The Maine Senator had the most protracted interview of last week with General Garfield.

The leading daily newspapers of the country will have an unusually expensive staff of correspondence here during the winter. The southern papers especially, will be better represented than ever before. On the race for news and sensations connected with government affairs the western dailies outstrip all others—perhaps, in some cases, because the western invention is livelier than that of any other sections.

HILTON.

The Republican Bourbons.

It is one of the misfortunes of the return of a discomfited party to power that the men who were responsible for its discomfiture, if not disgrace, interpret the restoration of popular confidence in the party as their own recall to public life. One reason of this is that such men cannot be made to see that their own misdoings or evil council had anything to do with the catastrophe; they regard themselves as innocent victims of the failure of a general plan and the restoration as their vindication. A man of this sort is Mr. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, ex Governor, ex-Senator and ex Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Boutwell was treated very well in his day. It was a long way from the grocer's shop in Groton to the head of the financial department of the government. Gradual as it was, his promotion was rapid enough to make him harbor the delusion that the Republican party, of which he believed himself a pillar, and the national government of which he was an important part, could not get along without him. His eyes were opened to this delusion one fine day about 4 years ago, when his claims for re-election to the United States Senate were rejected by the Massachusetts Legislature. Boutwell relapsed into obscurity as men of more moderate temper came to the front and the country and his party were quite willing to have him stay there, without caring a nicale for his opinions, for he had retired on a vote of want of confidence, and out of office he was "nothing to nobody." With the administration which succeeded Grant's, and whose peaceful methods and honesty, without particular ability, induced the people to give the Republican party another trial, he had no sympathy. In the four years of its life he did nothing except prophesy evil and nominate General Grant for a third Presidential term. The victory just gained was won in spite of the ugly record that he had helped to give his party and in spite of the fact that he and the old crowd were still in the party and persisted in making themselves conspicuous in the canvass. But with victory, nowever won, the bummers came to the front, and not only claim all the credit, but presume to dictate the policy of the conquerors and terms to the conquered.

In such a spirit Mr. Boutwell mounts a stump placed at his command by the editor of the North American Review and addresses the people of the United States on "The Future of the Republican party." If the policy that he prescribes is adopted its future will be short-lived. There are Bourbons and Bourbons. Mr. Boutwell is a Republican Bourbon. The Democratic Bourbons sighed for things as they were 'befo' the war.' The Republican Bourbon sighs for things as they were just after the war, when loyalty was a cloak sufficiently covering incompetency and the loudest-mouthed loyalist had the surest hold on power and the surest road to wealth. Mr. Boutwell was one of the products of those times, and he wishes the order "As you were!" to be passed along the line, so that to him and his kind may again be confided the trusts of which they proved unworthy. How is this state of affairs to be brought about? Nothing is easier. We must have another revolution. The South must be poked at and lashed until we have in its resistance a pretext for another reconstruction of the States that laid down the arms of rebellion sixteen years ago. Under the well-worn pretense of guaranteeing to every State a republican form of government a Republican President and a Republican Congress are to disregard ballots that have been cast and make Southern representatsou in Congress Republican in politics. Mr. Boutwell's plan involves the rejection by the House of all members whose seats are tainted by violence and fraud, as he believes and the party will be made to believe all Southern Democrats are; the rejection by the Senate of Senators whose own election may have been fair, but who were chosen by Legislatures to which exception can be taken; and, if necessary, although Mr. Boutwell does not say so in so many words, to use the means recommended by him in a report to the Senate a few years ago to remand the several Southern States to a territorial condition. Of course the reactionist is very careful to put his propositions in a euphemistic way, so as not to shock people who have a lingering respect for the Constitution of the United States and a profound desire for the peace of the Union; but this is a fair statement of the drift of his article.

Such wild schemes for the subversion of the Constitution and the reopening of the wounds of sectional bitterness cannot have condemnation too swift or too severe. It may be urged that they only exist in Boutwell's brain and that Boutwell is nobody now. Perhaps; but the significant fact is in giving them to the public he claims to speak for a large element of the Republican party—an element in which he has been a master spirit. To this element he claims—and he mentions Grant and Conkling as its leaders, modestly withholding his own name—to this element he claims "the success of the party is due in the largest degree." Speaking for this element he declares, with an air of authority, that "a policy of concessions, of compromise, of conciliation will no longer be tolerated in the Republican party." It is with such credentials and such a preface that he outlines his programme. If he had a copy of the Mentor treaty, of which we have heard so much, reduced to writing and in his pocket, he could not lay down the policy of the coming administration with greater assurance. We could not ask, however, for any better way of dissipating such revolutionary tendencies as he teaches than their promulgation under such auspices, and the finishing stroke will be dealt by public opinion just so soon as they are made known by discussion. The country, North and South, is tired of sectionalism and longs for peace. The North, forewarned that peace is to be disturbed merely for the sake of bringing a lot of repudiated placemen back to official life, will not lend itself to any such scheme, but be the more careful to encourage the manifestations of good will that come from the South; and the South forewarned of the conspiracy against her good name, will be the more solicitous not to give cause for Federal interference for partisan purposes, in her affairs. The Boutwells have come to the front too soon. They will be snubbed for their officiousness and the country will only suffer in the shudder at the thought of what might have been if through the nomination of Grant at Chicago and his election by some mysterious dispensation of Providence this pestiferous set had been allowed to sit again in the high places from which they were ejected by a whirlwind of popular wrath.—Times.

Alabama is showing some symptoms of having tired of August elections, and will doubtless follow the majority of States and hold her elections in November. This will save one election in a Presidential year and will be just as advantageous at all other times.

Ohio has figured it out that she will be entirely able to keep up the supply of Presidents as long as this country shall have any need for them.

Is there no Pennsylvanian in the Republican party capable to fill the position of United States Senator? Is it possible that they will be compelled to go abroad to find a suitable man?

Hon. David Mouat, one of the men sent to Indiana last October by the Republicans to watch the Democrats is wanted in the Quarter Sessions of the City of Philadelphia but is missing. The charge preferred against this excellent Republican statesman is that of changing and forging election returns of last February. It is now obvious that the Democrats of Indiana had a good watch among them; and it can be easily judged what he visited that State for.

The chief objection of the radicals of France to the senate is that a portion of its membership is for life, which they regard as anti-democratic. It is this feature of the French senate that certain snobs in this country want to imitate in proposing that ex-presidents be made senators for life. This accomplished, the next step would be to fasten ex cabinet ministers on the senate in the same way until the senate would be converted into an aristocratic and exclusive body, removed from all responsibility to the people. Any departure from the elective principle in representative offices is fraught with mischief in a republic. Such a suggestion can come only from admirers of aristocratic forms of government.—Patriot.

The death of Governor Williams will have the curious effect of giving the Democrats the organization of the Indiana Senate with the assent of the Republican senators; since it is only by this concession that the Republicans can get their new governor into office and a United States Senator in place of McDonald. The Indiana Senate being a tie and the law requiring it to be organized before the governor is inaugurated, the state will be left without a governor, at the expiration of the term of the lieutenant-governor who has taken Williams's place, if the Republicans of the Senate do not accept a Democratic organization. As they have also a senator to elect there can be no doubt but that they will be very glad to be very amiable, and that they will think themselves very fortunate if the Democrats consent to any organization at all when they can secure so great an advantage by avoiding it.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

A New State.

Much talk is now indulged in regard to the division of Pennsylvania and the formation of a new State west of the Alleghanies.

It may be well to bear in mind that before a new State can be formed within the jurisdiction of an old State the Legislature of the State concerned, as well as the Congress of the United States, must consent to such formation.

West Virginia was formed without the consent of the Legislature of Virginia, but Congress was then confessedly acting "out-of the constitution," as Virginia was in a state of war. But this will not be the case now.

Before the Legislature of Pennsylvania consents to the dismemberment of this great old Commonwealth, and adds an annual burthen of two or three millions of dollars to the already heavy load of the people, the men composing that would better hang mill stones about their necks and cast themselves into the sea.

Their memory will be accursed forever.—Sun & Democrat.

Lafayette College.

EASTON, Pa., November 30.—Pardee hall has been dedicated. Mr. Hayes and party arrived by special train about 11 o'clock, as did also a large number of gentlemen from Philadelphia, New York and Princeton. The party consisted of Mr. Hayes and son, Secretary Ramsey, General Sherman, Postmaster General Maynard and son, Third Assistant Postmaster Hazen, Assistant Superintendent of the Mail Service, Jameson, General Cadwallader, of Philadelphia, President of the Board of Trustees; President Gilman, of John Hopkins' University. They were received by a committee of reception, including Hon. Henry Green, Judge O. H. Meyers, ex-Judge Kirkpatrick, Senator Beidleman, Congressman elect Mutchler, President Hemingway, of council; President Dawes, of the school board; J. E. Fox and General Frank Reeder.

The distinguished visitors proceeded to the college in carriages, through crowds of curious citizens. The school children were out in a body, and the fire department paraded in honor of the occasion.

Before entering the hall addresses were made by Governor Hoyt, Mr. Hayes, President Cattell, Postmaster General Maynard and Mr. Pardee. The dedicatory services took place in the auditorium which was crowded.

Among those on the platform were Mr. Hayes and party, Governor Hoyt, General Patterson, General Reeder, ex-Senator Alexander Cattell, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Dickey, Dr. E. P. Heberton, Dr. S. A. Mutchmore, Dr. William H. Green, Dr. Joseph C. Moffatt, J. G. Bolton and others.

After prayer by Rev. Dr. Paxson, of New York, and a few words of introduction by President Cattell, Professor F. A. March delivered an able address, detailing the uses of the new hall and predicting for it a great future in scientific results.

Telegrams of regret were read from Governor McClellan and Senators Cameron and Wallace. The audience at the conclusion of the ceremonies crowded around the platform and were presented to Mr. Hayes. At 2 o'clock a collation was spread in the dining hall and was partaken of by a large number of visitors, after which several speeches were made.

A GENEROUS PROPOSITION.

Hon. John J. Blair in his speech made a proposition to endow the presidential chair to the extent of $50,000, and said he would be one of the five persons to give $10,000. This remark was received with tremendous applause. It is estimated that nearly 10,000 people visited the college grounds during the day.

A Contest for a Child.

When the parents of Mary Louise Marsland died in Brooklyn, she was claimed by her stepmother, who is a Roman Catholic, and her aunt, who is a Protestant. She was very young, and both relatives were anxious to assume her guardianship. As her father's dying request was that she should be reared as a Roman Catholic, the stepmother claimed her, but the aunt, who was wealthy, offered advantages for the child which the stepmother did not possess. The question as to which relative should be the guardian was submitted to Surrogate Livingston in Brooklyn, and he decided yesterday that, for the sake of the child's welfare, the aunt should be her guardian, but that nevertheless, the dying request of the father must be heeded, and the child must be brought up in the Roman Catholic faith.

Senator Grant, of Pennsylvania.

The latest Grant bulletin slates the old man for a seat in the United States Senate from Pennsylvania. This is not a mere newspaper fabrication. It is in the wind. The Grant managers have resolved all sorts of schemes to fix him comfortably, and a seat in the Senate is one of them. Strangely enough a seat for Illinois has hardly been thought of, except as a possibility in the hardly probable event that Logan will want to go into the Cabinet.

It seems to have been agreed by Conkling, Don Cameron and Logan that neither of them will become part of the administration on the ground that it will do just as well to have their representatives in the Cabinet while they remain in the Senate to hold the rod over Garfield. Conkling has thrown out a feeler to see how Grant would take as Kernan's successor, and Cameron is doing the same thing in Pennsylvania. It is Simon Cameron's idea and he has been quietly surveying the field with that in his mind. He can't stomach Grow at all. He is not sure that he could afford to let a man of Mr. Brewster's ability go to the Senate. He is afraid that Hoyt may slip in, and while he doesn't care to appear as opposing the Governor, he would a good deal rather that Don should have another mate. Of all the others who have declared themselves in the field not one of them is quite satisfactory to Simon, and he has almost given it up in despair.

Cameron has thought of Grant as a man who would be altogether in his hands and who would not interfere with the patronage in Pennsylvania. With the grip the Camerons have on Garfield it would be useless for Don's colleague to interfere in the patronage, and whoever is really desirous of going to the Senate will have to let it be known that he isn't going for the spoils. The Camerons are very tender on the spoils subject. Nothing vexes them more than to see a federal office filled in Pennsylvania without their naming the man for the place.

Grant would like a seat in the Senate. He would like most any high office with a fair salary and a reasonable tenure. He would go to the Senate for Pennsylvania without a second hint, and he is doubtless privy to all that the Camerons are doing in the matter.

How do Pennsylvania Republicans relish this plan of Old Winnebago? Is there no man in the Republican party capable to be a United States Senator that a search for an outsider must be instituted?—Philadelphia Chronicle Herald.

King Kalakaua, of the Sandwich Islands, expects to start soon for a trip through Europe and the United States.

Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, jr., received as a bridal present from her father the sum of $400,000 in government bonds.

Jenny Lind's first night netted $20 000; Rachel's, $5,000; Gerster's, $6,209 Christine Nilsson's, $9,300, and Sara Bernhardt's, with all her advertising, only a little more than $3,000.

John Keelan, after murdering his father at Stratford, Ontario, coolly sauntered into the house, ate a hearty supper, slept soundly all night, and, when the body was discovered in the morning, calmly said: "Oh, yes; I killed the old cuss."

General Benjamin P. Butler and others have petitioned for a charter for an elevated road in Boston, with a capital of $1,000,000. The road is to be shaped like an inverted V., with three rails, one at the apex and the other two at the bottom of the arms to steady the cars.

Mr. George C. Gorham has been talking with General Garfield and says that the next administration will have a strong stalwart flavor. This has been suspected, but perhaps Mr. Gorham's announcement will not be regarded as official.

There is now about $85,000,000 in gold bullion standing to the credit of the United States Treasurer, out of which it has been decided to coin, monthly, $10,000,000 of the denominations of five and ten dollars. The gold coins of a less denomination than five dollars will be coined at present. The work referred to will be performed at the Philadelphia mint. It is thought probable that this coinage will be continued until the $85,000,000 of bullion on hand is worked up.

WASHINGTON, November 24.—Gen. Garfield could not come to Washington from Mentor without stopping off at Harrisburg to dine with Don Cameron. Of course, that fact has no significance. Oh, certainly not. The first man to welcome his arrival at the capital was Bob Ingersoll, and the first woman was Mrs. Spencer, a noted woman's rights agitator. He starts well under these benign influences. Hayes cent his carriage to the station with a pair of horses that have been well kept at the public expense. This cheap civility was the first the Fraudulent President ever extended in a public form to this man, without whose vote on the electoral commission he would not have been put in the White House.—Sun.

There is living at the house of Capt. Means a girl about 9 years of ago, whose history is remarkable. An American vessel called at a small island in the Pacific Ocean to procure water. The island was inhabited by cannibals. They brought this little girl to sell for the Captain's dinner, offering to prepare her for cooking if they would buy. The Captain told them he would buy her. She was brought, and the Captain afterward meeting Capt. Means, gave her to him. She still believes she will be killed and eaten, and when strangers enter the house she clings to Mrs. Means, and begs protection of her.

The British Government is now building at Chatham a naval monster called the Polyphemus. This vessel, says a correspondent, which is utterly unlike anything previously seen in the royal navy, is designed as an armored sheet-plated ram of two thousand six hundred and forty tons and five thousand five hundred horse-power. She is built almost entirely of steel, and as a torpedo ram she will be the most formidable vessel in the world, and the opinion has been formed that there is no vessel afloat, no matter of what description, which could survive after one or two blows from her ram.

It should be the aim of every owner of Horses, Cows, &c., to make them as handsome and useful as possible. The German Horse and Cow Powder helps to develop all the powers of the animal. It improves its beauty and increases its usefulness. It makes milk, muscle and fat. By using it a horse will do more work and a cow give more milk and be in better condition with less feed. Sold only by weight at 15 cents a pound by C. A. Klein, Bloomsburg.

Nearly all the compositors of the Reading Eagle, who struck because a couple of females were employed, are back at their posts working along side of the girls. It is right. Girls should be permitted to do any kind of work they are able to do, but they should not work for lower wages than the boys. Fear of that, we presume, was the reason the hands struck.

Quite a sensation has been created in Wilkesbarre, by the appearance, at night, in the vicinity of Brewery Hill, of a man clad in ghostly apparel, frightening the females so badly that they will not venture out after night fall. 'Twould be a good thing were his ghostship to give Bloomsburg a visit. Perhaps it would stop a great deal of talk not very creditable to the large number of girls that run our streets at night.

Most of our merchants have already purchased their stock of holiday goods and have made tasty displays of the same. Judging from the pleasant and smiling countenances of the dealers, they expect big sales, and there is no reason why their expectations should not be realized, as money is plenty. There certainly is no need for our citizens to go away to make their purchases, when they can get everything at home just as cheap and good.

On next Tuesday evening, December 7, the people of Bloomsburg and vicinity will have the rare opportunity of hearing Chaplain McCabe's great lecture on "The Bright Side of Life in Libby Prison." While we are friendly to the small boy and like to see him have plenty of sport and enjoy himself all he can, yet we must confess that sometimes, it indulged too far, he makes something of a nuisance of himself. But would it not be well when giving notice to the boys not to slide their sled down the walks, making them slippery and dangerous, not to limit our commands. One small boy with his sled will make the pavements just as smooth and troublesome to foot-passengers as another small boy with a sled will. Always treat the boys all alike.

HAVE YOU HEARD THE NEWS?

Bliss will be here in a few weeks with his dime exhibition. The Professor's world wide reputation as a prestidigitator and ventriloquist alone makes the announcement of interest to the public; at the same time he promises new acts, songs, dances, &c., by new people. Watch for the date of the show that only charges one dime and always gives entire satisfaction.

All those knowing themselves indebted to us for subscription will do us a great favor by calling and paying up when they attend Court next week. Those desiring to take a good, reliable Democratic paper, we advise to subscribe for the COLUMBIAN which they can obtain for $1.50 per year in advance, or $2.00 if not paid in advance.

One of the principal changes now noticed in weddings is the absence of the proverbial marriage bell, and more recent horseshoe, for what seems a more imposing and comfortable style was lately seen at a fashionable wedding in New York. It was a raised dias or platform, on which the bridal party was seated to receive there 500 friends; over and around them was an arch or alcove of natural flowers. Ushers standing on either side ivr aties and keep back the crowd. No bridesmaids. The groom is always attended by a gentleman friend who, after the English fashion, is called "a best man." One would suppose that the intended husband was the best man on such an occasion.

A fire escape has been erected by the Trustees of the Normal School on the upper side of the dormitory building. It is so arranged as to afford an ample way of escape for all the south end of the building. The stairs are so constructed as to form a platform at each floor and thus open a way of escape to all. The outer edge of the stair has an iron railing so as no accident may occur. There are now four modes of escape. One stair at the north, two in the centre, and this last additional one at the south. Every advantage is being taken by the Trustees to make our school equal to any in the State. So far as a means of escape is concerned, we can boast of having the best arrangement of any school building.

J. H. Kimports has purchased the property of George Fenstermacher on Fourth Street.

Diphtheria is raging in Lewisburg. Sixty deaths have occurred from it recently in that place.

The saw mills at Williamsport have closed on account of the cold weather which prevents the running of logs.

Do any of our fire companies intend sending delegates to the Firemen's Convention at Reading? One of our organizations at least ought to be represented in that meeting.

The Adams-Keen Combination played "Chris the Millers Boy" in the Opera House on Wednesday evening to a fair sized audience. The Comedy is not of the first order, but the troupe rendered it about as well as the play would admit. Miss Sallie Adams, in her musical specialities, was particularly good.

THE COLUMBIAN is the only office in the county that has had job work on exhibition at our county fair for two years. This is evidence that we are not ashamed to show our work. We have already done some neat work for our merchants for the Holidays. You can judge for yourself when you see the work. Gilt edged cards, New Years cards and mourning cards, printed at this office in the neatest manner. We are practical, having served a full time at the trade and oversee all our work before it leaves the office. Satisfaction always given in price and style of work.

No recreation appears to give more life and cheerfulness than skating, with the temperature low enough to make active movements necessary. Thanksgiving afforded an excellent opportunity for this exercise, and was embraced by very young Americans as well as children of a larger growth. The graceful movements of the expert attracted more attention and admiration from lookers-on, perhaps, but the lofty tumbling of those taking the laboratory lessons produced more expressive demonstrations. It is surprising how many falls a person on skates can take without manifesting any pain or inconvenience. A fall on the head, a regular broadside or a back stem seem only to nerve the new beginner to renewed efforts.—Daily Bonner.

PERSONAL.

Geo. E. Elwell was in Philadelphia the past week.

Senator elect, E. J. McHenry, was in town on Monday.

F. S. Hunt, of Berwick, was in town on Tuesday afternoon,

Rohr McHenry, of Benton, was in town on Wednesday.

J. D. Bodine, of Mainville made Bloom a flying visit on Thursday.

F. S. Simpson made us a friendly call on Saturday last. "Sim" looks well and says insurance business is brisk.

W. C. McKinney, the popular boot and shoe dealer, arrived home the latter part of last week from his extended western trip, greatly improved in health.

ACCIDENTS.

Bart. Gordner had one of his hands hurt on last Friday at the car shops.

Geo. Margerum of Catawissa had his hand badly hurt last week in one of the car shops at Berwick.

Clark Shoemaker, an employee in Lockard's car shops, had the fingers of his right hand so badly lacerated, one day last week, that it became necessary to amputate three of them.

S. C. Shive met with a painful accident recently. He was engaged in work around a cider press and while in the act of driving a stake, slipped and fell on a plough share, breaking one of his ribs.

One day last week, the clothes of a young man named Bauman, working at Lockard's, were caught in the machinery and nearly torn from his body. The timely stoppage of the machinery prevented an accident which might have been fatal. As it was he escaped with a slightly damaged hand.

On Monday, John Beehtel, while engaged in moulding at Lockard's car shops, had one of his feet severely burned by the upsetting of a ladle containing red hot iron which ran into his shoe. The shoe was instantly removed and sweet oil applied and to-day his foot is rapidly healing.

Samuel Hill, an employee of Wm. Hart, engaged in mining hard ore at Armstrong's farm, met with a painful and serious ace dent on Monday morning about 9 o'clock. He was in the act of ramping a blast, when from some unknown cause, a sudden explosion occurred. His face is badly burned and presents a woeful picture. Whether he will lose the sight of his eyes can not be told, because of the swollen and burnt condition of his face. This is the second accident that has occurred in this mine within a short time.

SHERIFF'S SALES.

On Monday, November 22, 1880, the Sheriff sold the following properties to parties below named:

Property of A. V. Cool to A. W. Kramer for $125.

Property of Wm. Lamon to Joseph Lamon for $1,325.

Property of Walter Billman to Darius Yeager for $60.

Property of H. C. Press to Mrs. S. A. Eck for $1,150.

Property of Robert Bryson to Wm. Bryson for $60.

Property of James Reeder and wife to Margaret Bodine for $380.

Properties of Wm. Mensinger; three properties to J. L. Mensinger for $2,930.

The peculiarity of the A. S. T. Co. Black Tip is, that it is independent of the upper, and simply protects it from wear, without endangering the upper from ripping, as is the case with toe caps sewed on to the upper.

We would advise our public officers to examine the pockets of tramps before furnishing them with lodging for nothing. It seems some of them are rich men in disguise. The other day the dead body of a tramp was found in a coal bin in a village called Nescopeck, in Schenectady county, New York. Upon examination of his person the Coroner found 19 one thousand dollar government bonds, $750 in other government bonds of smaller denominations, and $239.72 in cash, besides a gold watch and chain valued at $150.00 and 5 old silver spoons marked "J. H. G.," making in all $19,989.72, besides the watch, chain and spoons above mentioned.

On the morning of his death he entered a house and asked for something to eat. He was refused on account of his squalid appearance, but the lady of the house gave him ten cents.

Investigation of the matter has commenced, and at present writing it is thought that the identification of the man, as John E. Giles, formerly a minister of the Gospel, is sufficiently well established. "His uncles and his cousins and his aunts" are springing up in countless numbers, all claiming shares of his estate; but the parties prosecuting the search for his relatives seem to recognize the claim of a certain lady in Michigan, who says she is the wife of the deceased, and corroborates her statement by letters. Mr. Thompson, a lawyer engaged in the case, states that there are other wives prior to her and that it will be hard to prove her right to the property.

The only pad guaranteed to cure diabetes, gravel, dropsy, Bright's disease, nervous debility, and all diseases of the kidneys and bladder, is Prof. Guilmette's French Kidney Pad.

When you attend Court next week bring your deeds along with you and have them placed on record. Delays are sometimes dangerous.

Mr. Harry Birkinbine is preparing about twenty-five workmen from here along with him to Long Branch to put in water pipes.

A NEW PAYING OCCUPATION
—FOR—
LADIES & GENTLEMEN

The Handsome Nickel Plated New Home Lamp being introduced to the public this season, is the most meritorious article ever offered agents to make money with, is safer and more convenient than the student lamp, which has heretofore had the reputation of being the safest lamp made, it has a clamp to attach it to the sewing machine, piano, organ, desk, etc. The fear of the ordinary lamp being accidentally upset or thrown from the table, is entirely relieved by the simple clamp contrivance. It can be adjusted to throw the light just where it is wanted to suit the eyes, and can be converted into a handsome wall lamp. It has the best argand burner, a filling indicator, and convenient match box, and its price is within the reach of every one. It has been fully tested and editorially endorsed by the Western Christian Advocate, Am. Christian Review, Herald and Presbyter, Journal and Messenger, and Christian Standard, the leading religious papers of Cincinnati, and is endorsed by the Mayor and Postmaster of Cincinnati, the agent of the American express company and presidents of insurance companies, as being the safest, most convenient and best lamp made.

There are three reasons why agents should seek such an article to canvass for—first for its absolute safety and great convenience, it is needed in every home—second its low price makes its sale immense—third it will be a great credit to handle such an article. One southern agent writes, it sells faster than Gen. Lee's portrait sold right after the war, another writes, it beats the palmy days of the sewing machine, for rapid sale, low price, and liberal terms surprise all agents. Address Home Lamp Co., Cincinnati, O., mentioning our paper and they will give you full particulars and exclusive territory to canvass in. nov.5-13w

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S BLOOD and LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening cordial, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the best blood purifier ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic diseases, Weakness of the Kidneys, all Nervous disorders and Debility. It corrects indigestion. It makes the old feel young, and the young feel gay; and will invariably drive out of the system the many ills that human flesh is heir to. A single bottle will prove to you at once its as a health renewer, for it acts like a charm, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

OAK HALL, PHILADELPHIA.

Worth Knowing.

There is a place in Philadelphia where a stranger may buy his clothes, and fare as well as if he knew the whole city by heart; and if he knows nothing about the value of cloths, or of clothes, he is as well off, as if he were a good judge of both.

The reason is that everything to be found there is made there—made and sold under a system which rarely allows mistakes to occur, and which corrects them, if they do occur.

OAK HALL is the place; and its practice may be summed up in a few words. If you get there what you don't want to keep at the price, you return it, and get your money back.

This means a great deal more than appears on the surface. It means that you are not going to get what you will not want to keep at the price, if the merchant can help it. It means that the clothes you get there will be of honest cloths, honestly made; and that they will cost you less than as good clothes can be got for elsewhere. It means that they will be every way better worth your money than you can get elsewhere for the same money.

If it means anything less than these things—if it means poor cloths, trimmings, cutting, sewing, or in any way dishonest or illiberal dealing; the return of his goods will plague the merchant, injure his credit, and dissipate his trade.

If it means these things—if it means liberal and honorable dealing, valuable and trusty clothing, ease and safety in getting it, OAK HALL is the place for you to go to, or to send to; and it is worth your while to know how you can send, if it is inconvenient to go.

Write; say what your occupation is; say what sort of use you intend to make of the clothes you want, whether for every-day wear or otherwise; what color you prefer, or what color to avoid; say about what you want to pay; say everything that you think may aid a stranger in choosing for you. You will get in reply samples of cloths and prices of whatever you want made from those cloths. You will get also the means of having your measure taken by an unskilful person.

There is only one difficulty left. Somebody has got to take the risks of the dealing; for there are risks. Send your money along with your order. That covers the risk as to your good faith. We risk everything else; the fit, and your satisfaction every way.

Our trade by mail amounts to half a million dollars a year; there's no reason why it shouldn't amount to five millions.

Hiptala's Harem.

ARRIVING IN NEW YORK WITH FOUR WIVES ARRAYED IN WONDERFUL ATTIRE.

There arrived in New York, lately, on the Inman st amship City of Brussels, from Liverpool, Mr. Escofally Hiptala, a Bombay merchant prince of almost untold wealth, who brings with him his four native wives, Vagesrbai, Allah Bundi, Yhanajan and Omdabia. These were in charge of another woman, who glories in the name of Bhombal, and a eunuch, Addeadilla Emaijee. In addition to this retinue were the servants of the male sex, varying in size, height and age. They all were either a turban of red fez, with black tassel pending, and were for the most part dressed in half European costumes, but their master, the merchant prince, was attired, with the exception of his nether garments, in true Oriental style of splendor. Under a loose overcoat, which was carelessly thrown open, could be seen a pale garment of pale pink, pending to the knees, on which was worked a mass of gold embroidery in a bewilderment of fantastic shapes. The party was accompanied by Mr. W. French, of Boston, and Mr. H Valentine The former of these gentlemen took the reporter below to the apartments which had been specially and luxuriously fitted up, under the supervision of Purser Sellar, for the Indian ladies. Before entering the door the eunuch, who was lying on a mat at the threshold, had to be assured that the reporter had his master's permission to enter the harem. The four ladies were sitting on a couch just like four little blackbirds all in a row,' with their feet tucked under them. In appearance they are decidedly pretty. Their faces are round and swarthy, while their features are well marked. The prettiest of all, however, is Omdabia, a wife of four years, and yet whose age to-day is only twelve. Omdabia, like her companions, was thinly clad; in fact she was simply enveloped in a thin replay of red and blue muslin clouds, adorned with ornaments of gold. Jewelry forms the largest and most important part of these Oriental ladies' wardrobes. Through their noses are pierced holes, from which hang rings of diamonds, pearls and other precious stones to far below the mouth and these swing to and fro with each motion of the head. They deck themselves out with trinkets according to their individual fancy. In some instances the ears are entirely hidden by the huge ornaments which they almost worship, and in all cases they wear around their shoeless feet one or two bands of silver and gold inlaid with rare stones. All these fair but dusky girls are small in stature.

While Deputy Surveyor Welch was examining the wonderful costumes contained in the trunks of the Bombay merchant the reporter asked of the latter the object of his visit to this country, to which he replied in very good English: "I come simply to see the United States of America. Mr. French and I are old friends, and from him I have heard so much of this country that I at last determined to visit it, and here I am. I am here simply on pleasure and as a private individual."

"May I ask in what manner you find employment for your numerous servants?" queried the reporter. "Each has certain things to do. With us no servant does two things, and, besides, when I get tired and weary I make them amuse me. They are all good musicians. During our trip across they had plenty of opportunity for practice as in that time some of our most solemn feasts took place. To the last of these we invited all the passengers and they appeared to be highly amused. Then I have also my conjurer, my snake charmer and my women who dance for me after dinner. When the Prince of Wales visited Bombay some years ago I entertained him, and on that occasion my wives showed him the nautch dance."

"Women Never Think."

If the crabbed old bachelor who uttered this sentiment could but witness the intense thought, deep study and thorough investigation of women in determining the best medicines to keep their families well, and would note their sagacity and wisdom in selecting Hop Bitters as the best, and demonstrating it by keeping their families in perpetual health, at a mere nominal expense, he would be forced to acknowledge that such sentiments are baseless and false.—Pleasure.

A Story of Ticonderoga.

"In the middle of the last century the chief of the Campbells of Inverawe had been giving an entertainment at his castle on the banks of the Awe. The party had broken up and Campbell was left alone. He was roused by a violent knocking at the gate, and was surprised at the appearance of one of his guests, with torn garments and dishevelled hair demanded admission. 'I have killed a man, and I am pursued by enemies. I beseech you to let me in.' Swear upon your dirk—upon the cruachan or hip where your dirk rests—swear by Ben Cruachan—that you will not betray me. Campbell swore and placed the fugitive in a secret place in the house. Presently there was a second knocking at the gate. It was a party of his guests, who said, 'Your cousin Donald has been killed; where is the murderer?' At this announcement Campbell remembered the great oath which he had sworn, gave an evasive answer, and sent off the pursuers in a wrong direction. He then went to the fugative and said, 'You have killed my cousin Donald. I cannot keep you here.' The murderer appealed to his oath, and persuaded Campbell to let him stay for the night. Campbell did so, and retired to rest. In the visions of the night the blood-stained Donald appeared to him with these words: 'Inverawe, blood has been shed; shield not the murderer. In the morning Campbell went to his guest, and told him that any further shelter was impossible. He took him, however, to a cave in Ben Cruachan, and left him. The night again closed in, and Campbell again slept, and again the bloodstained Donald appeared. 'Inverawa, Inverawe, blood has been shed; shield not the murderer.' On the morning he went to the cave on the mountain and the murderer had fled. Again at night he slept, and again the bloodstained Donald rose before him and said, 'Inverawe, Inverawe, blood has been shed. We shall not meet again until we meet at Ticonderoga.' He woke in the morning, and behold it was a dream. But the story of the triple apparition remained by him, and he often told it among his kinsmen, asking always what the ghost could mean by this mysterous word in their final rendezvous. In 1758 there broke out the French and English war in America, which after many rebuffs ended in the conquest of Quebec by General Wolfe. Campbell of Inverawe went out with the Black Watch, the Forty-second Highland regiment, afterward so famous. There, on the eve of an engagement, general came to his officers and said, 'We had better not tell Campbell the name of the fortress which we are to attack to-morrow. It is Ticonderoga. Let us call it fort George.' The assault took place in the morning Campbell was mortally wounded. He sent for the General. These were his last words: 'General you have deceived me; I have seen him again. This is Ticonderoga.'

A Wonderful Idiot.

An idiot who, perhaps, surpasses all rivals in memory, and in the capacity to make mathematical calculations in his head, was recently examined before the students of the medico-surgical academy of St. Petersburg. He is 27 years old. In his youth he was noted for his brilliant ability, but was addicted to the immoderate use of liquors, and led a dissipated life. He was attacked by an acute disease. When he recovered he was found to have lost all his mental faculties except memory and the power of mathematical calculation. These increased proportionately as his understanding and power of logical thinking vanished. Now he is a living phonograph and calculating apparatus. In the lecture room Professor Merjevsky requested him to square numbers containing five or six figures, to extract the square roots of all like numbers and so on. All the questions were correctly answered by the patient in a few seconds. No mathematician present could do anything like it. Then the Professor requested some one to read poetry aloud for several minutes, and the patient repeated it as correctly as a phonograph. The professor declared to the audience that he was unable to explain the physical phenomenon. The memory and the calculating capacity of the patient are still growing, while in other respects he is becoming a more hopeless idiot.

Your "Cream Balm" differs from all other preparations, as it does all you claim for it. I have been cured of Catarrah of many years' standing by its use, and my sense of smell has been restored. For colds in the head, it works like magic. E. H. Sherwood National State Bank, Elizabeth, N. J. Aug. 13, 1879.—See Adv't.

Ely's Cream Balm for the use of catarrah and Hay Fever is having large sales with me. I pronounce it the best article I have ever sold for the treatment of these diseases, and take pleasure in recommending it to my patrons, as I am from day to day hearing the most favorable reports of its beneficial effects. Henry B. Semple, Druggist, Easton Pa.

A Thirsty Crowd.

A good story is told of one of the most pretentious members of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. During the summer he entertained a party of friends on board his beautiful schooner in his usual economical manner. As the guests sat in the cabin, refreshed only by his sparkling conversation, one of them observed a tassel hanging from a bracket. 'That,' said the gallant yachtman, 'is something entirely new. It is an electric bell, which communicates instantaneously with the steward. The guest did so, amid a general clearing of throats and brightening of eyes. The steward at once responded—but there fell upon the thirsty and exhausted party a worse than Arabian drought when the gallant yachtsman ordered a 'glass of water, Johnson.'

What Everybody Wants.

It is a pleasant, reliable medicine that never does anybody any harm, and prevents and cures disease by keeping the stomach in perfect order, the bowels regular, and the kidneys and liver active. Such a medicine is Parker's Ginger Tonic. It relieves every case, and we have seen stacks of letters from thousands who have been saved and cured by it. See other column.—Tribune.
